Bev Grant

Inspired by the socially conscious songs of the 1960s, Bev Grant uses music to express her position on longstanding social dynamics and issues. Her songs tackle themes of social justice, feminism, and workers' rights, reflecting her commitment to using art as a tool for change. As Bev's career gained momentum in NYC, other likeminded artists who also sang of the triumphs and struggles of everyday people joined Bev, including The Human Condition, Bev Grant and the Dissident Daughters, The Miller Sisters, Wool&Grant, and most notably, the Brooklyn Women's Chorus. Her inspirational work has earned her the 2017 ASCAP Foundation's Jay Gorney award, as well the Labor Heritage Foundation's JOE HILL award. bevgrant.com

Carolann Solebello

Inspired by theater, Appalachian music, and social justice activism, Carolann Solebello blends a progressive ethos with a traditional sound. A founding member of the Americana trio Red Molly, Carolann now tours as a solo troubadour and with the modern folk quartet, No Fuss and Feathers. Her smooth, compelling voice and warm acoustic guitar style nod to rural folk traditions while her rhythmic precision and sophisticated phrasing plant her firmly in the urban present. Carolann is a proud member of AFM Local 1000 and the Jack Hardy Songwriters Exchange. She has hosted many open mics, won a bunch of songwriting awards, and is currently working on her sixth solo album. carolannsolebello.com

Martha Schlamme Centennial Celebration

Helene Williams, Belle Linda Halpern, Leonard Lehrman and Ron Roy, with The Solidarity Singers of the New Jersey Industrial Union Council, present songs commemorating the life and work of singer/actress Martha Schlamme, whose 100th birthday would have been tonight.

Martha Schlamme was an Austrian-American Jewish force of nature, a fighter for social justice, and a performer in 12 languages, specializing in Yiddish, German, French, Spanish, and Russian. After the Austrians accepted Hitler in 1938, Schlamme went into exile, first to Strasbourg, then London, and then interned on the Isle of Man, where she learned to sing "Songs of Many Lands."

Leonard and Helene began working together in 1987 and have performed in Europe, Australia, Israel, Canada, and the U.S.

Belle Linda Halpern has performed with accompanist Ron Roy as a cabaret singer in NYC, Boston, San Francisco, Paris, Munich, Jerusalem, Bombay, and every summer in the hills of Tuscany.

The Solidarity Singers, led by Bennet Zurofsky, perform at demonstrations and concerts throughout the Metropolitan area.
